On August 13th, 2017 the final day of the seventh Dota 2 tournament "The International" took place in Seattle. It was the eSport event with the largest prize pool of all time, about 25 million USD in total, and with up to 11 million viewers worldwide watching the last games on stream. The text above logs 26 seconds of the live chat accompanying the stream with the largest English speaking viewership on Twitch.tv, right after Kuro "KuroKy" Salehi Takhasomi, referenced heavily in chat, and his Team Liquid had defeated Team Newbee in the finals. (The complete log of this channel on that day made up to 11 thousand A4 pages of text in total.) It is the moment when the cheering and often racist and sexist memory of twitch chat was replaced by an emotional spam of the crying face emote "BibleThump", making it the most used phrase here. Also, the iconic meme "we did it reddit" stands in the centre of this text, claiming an influence of the fan posts and cheering written on the message board and in chat on the disconnected events happening on stage in Seattle.
